COMMENT OF THE DAY

Japan Sea Air Clash

RUSSIAN jet pilots have shot down another U.S. Naval bomber off the coast of Siberia. Is the attack to be denounced as another blatant example of irresponsible trigger-happiness by the Russians, or is it to be excused as "one of those unfortunate misunderstandings", or are the Americans to be blamed for flying in this dangerous area which has already earned the name of the "graveyard" of American patrol planes? Certainly the policy of "shoot first" is reckless and dangerous and one that is to be deplored when a comparatively harmless "violation of frontiers" (if indeed that is what happened) could be settled easily through normal diplomatic channels. Consider the American version of the incident: The Russians made an unprovoked attack on the naval patrol plane in international waters. This would not be at all surprising—the Russians have done it before in that same area, resulting in the loss of two American patrol planes, one in 1951 and another in 1953. The Russians have done the same thing in Europe in the Berlin air corridor. Now consider the Russian version: the American plane could have been off course; the Russian planes could have approached it, as they say, to warn it of its alleged transgression and the Americans could have misunderstood the intentions of the Russians and, fearing attack, opened fire. This may cause many people to doubt the words of the American airmen. It is possibly calculated to do just that.

WE would prefer to accept the American version of the attack but, in doing so, it must be stressed that the Americans are taking grave risks by flying so close to the Communist coast and it would be better if this could be avoided. These "strategic surveillance" patrols, in many cases, fly perilously close to Siberia, the eastern and western coasts of North Korea, Port Arthur, Dairen and the China coast. The patrol plane which was shot down on Saturday was only 44 miles from the Siberian mainland. America would not appreciate the presence of a Soviet aircraft so close to its coast. Unless these patrols are very carefully executed, they may lead to "misunderstanding by the Communists who, as the Americans should know by now, are capable of turning the most innocent operation into a provocative act of aggression." Failure to take these precautions may lead to further incidents of this nature. And this will only lead to a grave situation, the likelihood of which is

Eisenhower Angry With Knowland

Washington, Sept. 6. President Eisenhower is said to be angry with Senator William Knowland, the Republican Party leader, for the shooting down of the U.S. Naval patrol plane by Communist fighters, the United States should sever diplomatic relations with Soviet Russia.

Mr. Eisenhower was reported to be indignant and upset because Senator Knowland made public a telegram to him urging this reversal of policy before the President received it.

The President's attitude is well known—that such a demand is likely to create unnecessary confusion and misunderstanding among United States allies. He is on record as saying the United States cannot possibly serve its best interests by breaking completely with Russia.

Through Mr. James Hagerty, the White House press secretary, told reporters in Denver that the reply to Senator Knowland would not be disclosed, it is understood the President is considering whether he should also make a public statement which would leave no room for doubt about his policy.

Senior United States foreign policy officials broke their holiday today for top level conferences on the shooting incident.

They were in constant touch with President Eisenhower at his "holier White House" in Denver, Colorado, and with Mr. John Foster Dulles, American Secretary of State, in Manila for the SEATO conference.—Reuter.

Six Killed In Swedish Train Crash

Stockholm, Sept. 6. An express train ran off the rails and plunged into a marsh in South Sweden today, killing six people and injuring about 50.

The accident occurred at Roserick, between Malmö and Stockholm. The killed and injured were in the train's day carriage.

Sleeping cars remained on the track.

It was the worst accident on the Government-owned Swedish railways since January, 1951.—Reuter and United Press.

Japanese Volcano Erupts

Tokyo, Sept. 6. Mount Asama, largest active volcano on the Japanese island of Honshu, erupted with a big explosion this evening.

Rumbling were still heard an hour after the initial explosion.

The meteorological observatory at Karuizawa, famous summer resort near the volcano, said the eruption of the volcano

London, Sept. 6. Admiral Earl Mountbatten of Burma will relinquish his post as Commander-in-Chief, Mediterranean, in December, the Admiralty announced tonight.

But an Admiralty spokesman said no future appointment for Earl Mountbatten, who is uncle of the Duke of Edinburgh, was yet known. However, he has been unofficially tipped as the next First Sea Lord of the Admiralty.

Earl Mountbatten assumed the additional post of C-in-C, Allied Forces, Mediterranean, on its inception in March 1953.

He is to be succeeded in both posts in December by Admiral Sir Guy Grantham, 64, formerly second in command, Mediterranean Fleet.

Earl Mountbatten has been British Commander-in-Chief in the Mediterranean since May 1952, when he succeeded Admiral Sir John Edelson.

He was appointed when he was Fourth Sea Lord, one of many distinguished positions he has filled in a long career during which he has been Vice-Chief of the Admiralty, Allied Supreme Commander in South-East Asia.

PURELY ROUTINE

An Admiralty official said later that the changeover was purely "routine."

Six Die In Nigerian Rioting

Lagos, Nigeria, Sept. 6. Riots flared at Oyo, 140 miles from here, yesterday claiming six deaths and 23 people were injured, it was reported today.

Oyo is a town of 45,000 inhabitants, 300 miles north of Ibadan, seat of the Western Regional Government.

The riots broke out when rival political parties began to assemble during a meeting organized by the National Council of Nigeria and the Cameroons (NCNC). This is one of the major political parties which will contest the Federal elections later this year.

In the House of Assembly at Ibadan this afternoon, Dr. Obafemi Awolowo, leader of the Action Group—the party in power in the Western Region—accused the NCNC of starting the riot. He said if politics were going to degenerate in this way he would give them up.

Replying Mr. T. O. S. Benson, the Opposition leader, said that whenever his party held meetings, they were attacked by hired hooligans.

Among the injured was H. O. D. Davies who assisted in the defence of Mau Mau leader Jomo Kenyatta during his trial in Kenya. Davies was at Oyo campaigning on behalf of the NCNC.

The town was stated to be quiet again tonight.—Reuter.

Admiral Sir Guy Grantham, 64, was naval liaison officer to the 8th Army in the western desert in the last war. He won the Distinguished Service Order for gallantry during the withdrawal of Allied fighting men from Greece.

In 1944 and 1945, he attended the Quebec, Yalta and Potsdam conferences as a member of the staff of the First Sea Lord.

France-Press said, for some time rumours have been current in political circles that he would be appointed First Sea Lord.

TORY OPPOSITION

This suggestion is opposed by certain Conservative quarters, including the London newspaper "Daily Express," which reproaches Lord Mountbatten for preparing for the departure of the British from India when he served as Viceroy of India under a Labour government.

Lord Mountbatten's father, Admiral Battenberg, was First Sea Lord in 1914. He changed his name to Mountbatten in 1917. Although he showed great vigilance in the face of the German danger, he had to leave his post as a result of a campaign against people of German origin.

Ironically, Winston Churchill was the First Lord at the Admiralty who reluctantly had to let him go because of popular anti-German prejudice.—Reuter, France-Press and United Press.

Labour Group Leaves For Singapore

The British Labour Party delegation led by Mr. Aneurin Bevan left by CPA at 10.10 a.m. today for Singapore.

They will stay in Singapore for two days and make a brief stop over at Rangoon before returning home.

The other members of the group were: Dr. Edith Summerville, Messrs W. A. Barker, H. E. H. Franklin, Morgan Phillips and Sam Watson.

The party was seen off at the airport by Mr. A. J. Schouten, ADC to H.E. O.A.G., Mr. J. C. C. Walden, of the Colonial Secretariat, Mr. S. S. Knowles, Press Officer, Mr. Ralph Winship, Assistant Director of Civil Aviation and Mr. T. A. Bax, sales manager of CPA.

Knocking Heard From Sunken Tug Man And Boy Believed Trapped In Hull

Cuxhaven, Germany, Sept. 6. Salvage workers tonight reported hearing knocking signals from a tug, three hours after she had sunk off Cuxhaven in a collision with the liner Italia.

The radio operator and the skipper's five-year-old son went down with the tug.

A check of those aboard had shown that the radio operator was missing, though at first it had been thought that all except the boy had escaped to jump to safety.

Salvage men said they thought the tug was still in the water, but only two hours showing above the surface.

They worked feverishly under artificial light to drag her into shallow waters, where she lay only two hours showing above the surface.

The 1577-ton Italia and the tug collided when the liner was carrying 1,000 passengers and 1,000 crew.

The tug turned on her side and began to sink.

The skipper's son had been seen in the water at quarter past eight.

Salvage men said they thought the tug was still in the water, but only two hours showing above the surface.

Britain Takes New Lead In Aircraft Development

London, Sept. 6. New and exciting experiments on a wingless aircraft may well lead to "a revolution in aeronautical development every bit as important as that which has resulted from the introduction of the jet engine," the Minister of Supply, Mr. Duncan Sandys, said yesterday.

A British firm, in conjunction with the Ministry of Supply had produced the experimental wingless plane which could take off vertically from a horizontal position without the aid of wings or motors, Mr. Sandys said.

It weighed three and a half tons, "lifts itself into the air" and at its first tests a few weeks ago, it flew around successfully for about ten minutes and landed without trouble, he added.

Mr. Sandys said that the "contraption" had a heat problem when it attained the speed of 1,700 miles per hour at an altitude of 40,000 feet. The temperature on the surface of the plane then reaches about 180 degrees Centigrade. This had been discovered in the first test flight of the plane.

"If, therefore, we wish to fly at an appreciably higher speed, we shall have to apply all our ingenuity to design air frames which minimise air resistance," Mr. Sandys said, "and suitable methods of insulation and development of structural materials capable of withstanding much higher temperatures."

TRIED TO IMPROVE

Mr. Sandys said the British had undertaken to improve the American "vertical" take-off planes which take off vertically upwards.

"From the standpoint of convenience and comfort, this unusual posture has obvious disadvantages," he said.

"For this and other reasons, we in Britain are concentrating rather upon techniques designed to enable aircraft to take off vertically from a normal horizontal position."

Assam City Doomed By Floods

Thousands Evacuated

Calcutta, Sept. 7. The city of Dibrugarh, one of India's big tea trading centres, was near death last night in the grip of the raging flood waters of the Brahmaputra.

"Latest reports said the whole city would disappear in a matter of hours" unless the Brahmaputra changed course.

The relentless flood swallowed up the city place by place as the 50,000 inhabitants fled from the swifling waters.

"The battle for the city, richest in Assam State, and an Allied air base in the second world war, was virtually lost today when almost the entire length of the 1,500-foot wall protecting the business and residential areas was swept away."

DON'T LOSE NERVE

The Prime Minister of India, Mr. Jawaharlal Nehru, touring the flood-stricken area, told the people of Dibrugarh: "Don't lose your nerve."

"Mr. Nehru was reported to have said: 'As the waters rise, the flood waters steadily rising, it is most important that you do not lose your nerve. You must stay in your homes and wait for the rescue team to arrive.'"

Surprise Verdict On Air Crash Deaths

Shannon Airport, Sept. 6. Gasoline fumes, not drowning, killed 25 of the 28 persons who died in a freak, slow motion disaster when a Dutch airliner crashed in the River Shannon yesterday, the airport's medical officer disclosed today.

"Death was due to inhalation of petrol vapours causing asphyxiation," Dr. Flynn told an official inquiry after his conducted postmortem on the bodies.

Dr. Flynn, airport medical officer, who performed a post-mortem examination on the 23 bodies recovered from the wreck, said the entire skin of most of them was reddened as if burned.

There had been no sign of injury to bodies or lungs and no evidence of drowning, he said.

The death of an American woman, who died in hospital after being rescued, was ascribed to shock and multiple injuries including a blistered back from petrol burns.

FUEL TANK BURST

Arrangements are being made to fly 23 coffins containing the bodies to Amsterdam tomorrow. From there they will be shipped to their homes.

Dr. Flynn's testimony bore out the reports of the 28 passengers and members of the crew who escaped almost unhurt from the Amsterdam-New York airliner.

They said a "wing fuel tank had burst, flooding the cabin with fumes," the "United Press" and Reuter.

German Official Arrested

Wiesbaden, Sept. 6. Dr. Horst Krueger, former West German intelligence official, has been arrested on charges of supplying information about "American" troops units to an East German secret service agent, police here disclosed today.

Krueger was dismissed from the Hessian Office for the protection of the constitution last year after allegations that he had transmitted information to which he had access in the course of his duty to the headquarters of the Social Democratic Party.

No date has been fixed for his trial.—Reuter.

DE CASTRIES TO INVESTIGATE

Responsibility For Dien Bien Phu

Saigon, Sept. 6.

Gen. Christian de Castries intends to establish the true responsibilities for the Dien Bien Phu defeat, worst in France's colonial history, intimates reported today.

They said the General, just liberated from four months in a Communist prison camp, would not mince words if given free rein.

The gallant defender of Dien Bien Phu, meanwhile, arrived in Saigon from Hanoi, he had been urgently summoned to report to Gen. Paul Ely, French Far Eastern Commander.

The High Command is counting on the eye-witness accounts of Gen. de Castries and his staff to shed light on French weaknesses in the epic 56-day siege. Military circles said they attached "considerable importance" to their testimony.

NO STATEMENTS
So far the red-capped general, who arrived here this morning by air accompanied by Deputy Indo-China Commander Gen. Rene Cogny, has made no statements to journalists on responsibilities in the Dien Bien Phu disaster.

At the beginning, the Viet thought for three days that it was a false de Castries, and that the real one had been able to get away. After they found out they had the right one, they kept me under very close guard and in various hide-outs," he said.

"But at last I did get 1,000 grams of rice a day—more than their own men, who got only 1200 grams."

GUARDS' FEAR
"My guards had only one fear: that I'd slip between their fingers. I had seriously thought of escaping but I caught dysentery twice and was too weak."

He said he was not subjected to any Communist propaganda or brainwashing attempts.

Gen. de Castries said he did not know how long he would stay in Indo-China. But he counts on being able personally to distribute medals to some of his men for their valour at Dien Bien Phu.—United Press.

Polish Sailors Being Turned Into Militarists

By A Reuter Correspondent

Stockholm, Sept. 7.

A new drive to turn Poland's merchant sailors into militarists and atheists has been started by her Communist government.

Details were given me by Mr Edward Tondel, a young Polish merchant navy officer who jumped his ship, Elblag, while she lay in Gothenburg bound for Oslo from Gdynia.

Mr Tondel had successfully completed the five years officers' training course at Stettin and Gdynia. He had been appointed leader of the school's "League of Polish Youth," the Communist party's youth organisation, and assigned to special propaganda duties on land and at sea.

Sickening of them, he chose political asylum in Sweden.

Four hours a week of the training at the sea school is devoted to the theory of weapons, although it turns out only merchant officers for the "Polish ocean line," engaged in trans-ocean traffic, for the Polish-Chinese line, owned jointly by the Polish and Chinese states and plying to the Far East, and for the P.M.H. lines which carry cargoes between Poland and the Baltic and North Sea ports.

One whole day a week, usually a Wednesday, is devoted to practical training in military subjects. The future merchant officers are taught how to use weapons ranging from revolvers and machineguns to depth charges.

SECRET POLICE

Trainees best at this subject and at ideology are regularly offered special posts inside the U. B., the secret police. They are placed on spies in the merchant marine to inform on sailors suspected of political unreliability. They are trained in a special school.

Mr Tondel, after his appointment as ideological leader of the sea school's "League of Polish Youth" was asked to recommend the 15 sea school men who were to be drafted into the U. B. this year. Some of them were reluctant to accept, but none dared to refuse.

A large part of the teaching time is spent in ideology. Here, the future officers are told that the ultimate aim of the state is to root out religion.

One pupil asked Mr Mikeszacki, one of the lecturers on ideology, why the Government protected the "patriotic Catholic priests" while young Poles were urged to combat religion.

Mr Mikeszacki replied: "First, we must fight the oppositional elements among the priesthood. The turn of the patriotic priests will come later."

Officially, the pupils were allowed to go to church, but the sea school always holds "voluntary courses" in ideology. Pupils choosing church before Communism are in this way singled out and generally expelled from the school before the end of the five years course.

The intensified anti-religious propaganda is often childish, Mr Tondel said.

A regulation has been issued limiting the sizes of crucifixes which may be hung up in the school to 15 centimetres. A 30-centimetre high cross in the workshop and large ones in the school's hospital have been taken down.

At the same time, Mr Tondel, as Polish Youth Leader, was ordered to collect from the students any crosses or religious medals which they had and to wear them. After he had done so, the cooks in the kitchen boycotted him and refused to give him second helpings at mealtimes. Many pupils told him that their medals were not religious but tokens from their fiancées.

"It was that kind of persecution which finally sickened me of the regime," he added.

About the same time a loud speaker was fitted up outside the school near a Catholic church. As Poles went to Mass, the propaganda courses going on at the same time in the sea school were broadcast through the speaker.

POLITICAL POWER

One consequence of the increased anti-religious drive is the transfer of political power from older men to young Poles in their teens and early twenties.

Mr Tondel found that he and other Youth League leaders were sent out into the Baltic fishing villages to make propaganda among the inhabitants. Officially, they were auditing the accounts of the local branches of the Youth League.

In a similar capacity, they were sent on board ships berthing in the Baltic ports and asked to investigate conflicts between the older seamen and the younger members of the crews, organised into the Youth League.

Early this year, Mr Tondel was told that in future Youth League would check the work of the Politbure, the political officers placed on board each ship to watch the ideology of the crews. The politbure, it was explained, had been too arrogant and brutal towards the crews. They should adopt a more fatherly attitude, Mr Tondel was told.

He was, therefore, set to single out the good politbure from the bad. He checked two or three ships every day and wrote a twelve-page report on each.

Later, while serving at sea, he was able to see how many politbure had worked off personal grievances against seamen by writing bad reports on them.

The general view in Stockholm is that the cause of the new anti-religious and militarist drive among Polish seamen is an attempt to reduce the number escaping to the Western world. The effect, it is thought here, may be to increase the flow.—Reuter.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

Learning to Count Pays Dividends

By OSWALD JACOBY

WHEN today's hand was played, South counted only his losers. He saw that he could discard both of his diamonds on dummy's hearts, and he assumed that he would have no club losers in view of dummy's shortness.

Without doing any more counting, declarer drew three rounds of trumps and ran four rounds of hearts in order to discard his diamonds.

Declarer then looked at the hand more closely and discovered that he had practically no play to make his contract. He had already taken seven tricks and could surely cash both top clubs and make his two trumps separately, but there would give him only 11 tricks. He couldn't get back and forth conveniently enough to establish an extra club trick.

South tried his best at this stage by leading the king of clubs, ruffing a diamond, and leading the ace of clubs, and then leading the ten of clubs. South hoped that West would duck the ten of clubs, but West was not so foolish.

He covered with the queen, forcing dummy to ruff. This established South's jack of clubs, but there was no way for South to get back to his hand to cash this trick. Dummy was left in the lead with two losing diamonds, and the slim contract was therefore defeated.

South should count his winners at the very beginning of the hand. Since there are four hearts and no diamonds, South must make eight tricks in the black suits. Since there is no way to get two ruffing tricks in the dummy and thus make six trump tricks altogether, South must plan to make three club tricks. (If South tries to ruff twice in the dummy, he will get stuck in the dummy with no way to get out.)

Once South has seen clearly that he needs three club tricks, his proper course is clear. He should draw trumps with the queen and the king, lead a club to the king, get back with the ace of spades, cash the ace of clubs and then lead the jack of clubs. When West plays a low club, South should let this trick ride. The contract therefore depends on dropping a doubleton queen of clubs or on finding it in the West hand.

When the jack of clubs holds, South can cash the four hearts in order to get rid of his diamonds and can easily make 12 tricks. It isn't difficult to solve this problem once you have counted your tricks and discovered what the problem is.

CARD SENSE

Q—With both sides vulnerable, the bidding has been North-South. South West 1 Diamond Double. You, South, hold: Spades 8-7, Hearts K-Q-9-7-6, Diamonds 7-2, Clubs Q-9-3-2. What do you do?

A—Bid one heart. You may never get another cheap chance to bid your major suit. Your hand is limited by the fact that you didn't redouble.

TODAY'S QUESTION

The bidding is the same as in the question just answered. You, South, hold: Spades 8-7, Hearts K-Q-9-7-6, Diamonds 7-2, Clubs Q-9-3-2. What do you do?

BORN today, you have great confidence in your own ability. Your imagination is spurred on to great heights. This sometimes leads you to promise more than you can ultimately deliver. If you are wise, you will conquer this habit before it can lead to widespread misunderstanding. You may not intend to misrepresent, but when the time comes you have to admit you bit off more than you could chew.

You are intuitive and strongly drawn to the supernatural. It would be well for you not to permit yourself to become influenced too much in this respect, for you may do things that you would regret later. You cannot endure monotony or routine and must always find something new and interesting to entertain on. This adventurous trend is apt to pay high dividends when you succeed—but it can mean a serious loss if you permit your impulse to override your judgment. You have a strong emotional nature and if this is repressed you will not be content and may find difficulties which should not present themselves. You are very demanding when it comes to love and romance. Perhaps you set your standards a little too high for the realities of life!

VIRGO (Aug. 24-Sept. 23)—There may be minor setbacks, but if you are forewarned you can easily circumvent them successfully.

LIBRA (Sept. 24-Oct. 23)—There is more good than bad today. Still, there are a few rugged hurdles which you will need to get over before you win out.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 23)—Don't be too adventurous today. Lady Luck is not smiling in your direction, so stick close to the facts and figures.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 23)—A fine day for all your efforts. Ambitions should be rewarded now. Plan anything you like; then do it!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23-Jan. 20)—Familiar routine is best just now. Take no chances, for you are not likely to win on that long shot!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21-Feb. 19)—Be conservative today. If you want to get ahead, take a few chances in the right time.

PISCES (Feb. 20-Mar. 20)—Your judgment may not be as keen as it usually is today, so think twice before acting out upon anything.

ARIES (Mar. 21-Apr. 20)—If you are not sure of your own strength, don't should work out all right. Don't, however, play a long shot!

TAURUS (Apr. 21-May 21)—Mixed aspects, so be on guard against an unexpected reversal in tactics.

GEMINI (May 22-June 21)—All will go well, for you are not careless of detail work. Be sure of your facts, then follow them.

CANCER (June 22-July 23)—This is a neutral day as far as you are concerned, so don't push anything beyond what is absolutely necessary.

WOMANSENSE

LINK WITH THE PHARAOHS

Style adapted from the time of the Pharaohs is worn by Liverpool-born Stella O'Hara, getting acquainted with Cleo, the five-month-old camel born at the London Zoo. Stella's turban hat, in black and green velvet, was inspired by MGM's "Valley of the Kings," filmed among the tombs and pyramids of Egypt. The hat, by Edna, is an adaptation of native headgear.

Women's Desire For Change Demands New Length In Hair Styles

By Gay Pauley

WOMEN'S hair, which has been fashionably cut just short of baldness, is growing again.

The National Hairdressers and Cosmetologists Association has decreed the end of the shaggy bob with wisps straggling across the forehead, or the even shorter butch cut. It has endorsed a high line, with width at the temples and curled or brushed up at the back.

The new length, says the association, is about the middle of the neck or "high collar."

Hairdressers, hat designers and a woman's eternal desire for change are responsible for the longer trend.

Hat designers, featuring deeper crowns for autumn, say more hat calls for more hair.

Teddy's "Giggly Words"

—He Thinks "Catfish" and "Cowboy" are Funny—

By MAX TRELL

TEDDY the Stuffed Bear was giggling to himself as Hanid, the shadow-girl with the turned-about name, came into the room.

"Why, Teddy, what's so funny?" she asked him.

"Whiskered Fish," said Teddy. "And he went into a fit of giggles."

Hanid frowned and looked puzzled. "Catfish? I don't see anything funny about catfish."

"Of course," she added the next moment, "they are sort of funny. They have little whiskers. But I don't see why that should make you giggle so much."

Teddy finally stopped and explained. "Catfish is a giggly word. Hanid, it's got cat and fish in it. But cats don't like fish."

"Oh, yes, they do!" said Hanid. "They love fish."

"They love to eat fish," said Teddy. "But they don't really love fish. If they really love fish, they wouldn't eat them up."

They'd keep them in an aquarium, or something. Or just let them alone. And fish don't like cats either. And that's why the word catfish is so funny and giggly."

Hanid said there were lots of words which described the kind of work that people did and which didn't mean that they were the thing that the word said.

Training The Child To Do What He "Ought"

By Garry C. Myers, Ph.D.

IN this column, I have repeatedly deplored that philosophy of education at home or school which holds that the child should be expected to do only what he feels like doing. How can a child acquire a strong sense of responsibility if he is not trained to do many useful things he doesn't like to do?

This must have been what the philosopher, Herbert Spencer, had in mind when he wrote: "You are educated if you do what you ought, whether you want to do it or not."

NOT ALL AGREE

Most of us would agree with Mr. Spencer's objective. We might not, however, all agree on the way and means of arriving at this objective.

The problem is to get the child to feel the "ought" and then put this "ought" into action. Merely to say to the child, however often, that he "ought" to do this or that doesn't guarantee that he will act on the "ought" or even feel it.

For example, you or I might feel we "ought" to write a letter to a certain friend, but at the very moment, this feeling is strongest, there may be within us certain resistances. We even may reason with ourselves that we should not write the letter now. Though our conscience may be silenced, temporarily, later on it may be uneasy over that unanswered letter. In case this letter never is written, we tend to become a weaker person morally than if we had never had the slightest feeling that we should answer it.

NOT THE RIGHT TIME

There is rarely any use in telling a child, say of twelve, that he "ought" to wash the dishes, make his bed or mow the lawn, for the time we are most likely to tell him this, is the very time he is least likely to do it. Usually, when we parents employ such words as "should" or "ought" in exhorting the child, we are least fit emotionally to make such exhortation, and the child is least receptive emotionally. Both he and we are out of sorts then, as a rule. Consequently, we tend to make "cups" or "shoulds" a chronic irritant to him, and cause him to hate these words and what they imply.

Manhattan hairdressers surveyed predicted longer hair, but as Michel of Helena Rubinstein, Inc., put it: "Never, never that flowing, shoulder-length stuff."

"The shaggy look has had it," said Charles of the Ritz. "Hair will get longer and fuller at the top and sides."

"Comfort or no comfort, women want to be different," said Fred Fredericks of John-Fredericks.

"The new silhouette in clothes is slimmer and trimmer, and a woman needs, stuff somewhere," he added.

Two milliners say hair will get longer because women demand change.

Grooming Pointers for Little Girls

By ALICE ALDEN

LITTLE daughters are never too young to learn to be neat, well groomed and to take pride in their appearance.

Today's youngsters get a head-start in this field, since there's so much emphasis on checkups with the baby doctor and the dentist. Health, as everyone knows, goes hand in hand with beauty.

But health isn't enough. A little girl must learn to care for her appearance, too.

Start with her hair. Teach her the importance of a weekly shampoo. You'll have to do the job to start with, but later on she'll be able to tackle it herself.

Make the shampoo glamorous by setting daughter's hair afterwards. Experiment with new coiffures after the shampoo.

Insist on tooth-brushing after every meal. Train her early in this and you'll save her tooth-aches and such troubles later.

Children's hands are always dirty. That's natural, because after a day's making mud pies and such. But, before dinner, have her clean up, scrub hands thoroughly, clean fingernails. To encourage this, you might even give daughter a weekly manicure with a "colored" nail polish.

There are special clothes for little hands that will encourage you to wash them. These are called "hand washers" and are made of soft material.

Suppose a climbing vine is stuck with a sticky substance. You can wash it with a special "vine wash" and it will be clean again.

Attractive Twosome

Like Institute

By ALICE ALDEN

ONE of the delights of the fashion world is in the constantly widening combination of fabrics, with strange pairings but not only proving workable but wonderful. One of the newest fabric twosomes is lace and cashmere, astonishing, but most attractive. We came upon it in an evening outfit, a carved-out sweater top of downy white cashmere and a lovely lace skirt. The scoop-necked sweater has short sleeves in white, and the lace skirt is tucked in. The exquisite white lace skirt falls in a knot of flowers for the waist that provides just the right touch of decor for the twin. It's a distinguished evening costume especially for smart resort and shipboard wear.

Hang corduroy clothing on the line dripping wet after washing. It will then stiff but when dry, and need no ironing.

A tip for new housekeepers: Keep a good supply of hot-boards handy. They will save you many a bad hurt.

Clean doors can work for you. You will equip them with coats, umbrellas and shoes. You might turn the door into a level, neat and clean shoe-shed. Underneath, you can place a box of shoes, and a box of shoes, and a box of shoes.

SEIXAS AND DORIS HART WIN THE SINGLES TITLES AT FOREST HILLS

Forest Hills, New York, Sept. 6

Smooth-stroking Vic Seixas and hard-luck Miss Doris Hart today won the men's and women's singles titles in the U.S. Amateur Tennis Championships.

Seixas, a 31-year-old Philadelphian playing in the Nationals for the 14th time and in the finals for the second straight year, battled back to defeat Australian Rex Hartwig, 3-6, 6-2, 6-4, 6-4.

And Miss Hart reached the end of the tennis rainbow when, after five previous heart-breaking trips to the finals, she finally proved her class and her courage by fighting off three match points to defeat Miss Louise Brough of Beverly Hills, California, 6-1, 6-8, 8-6.

The crafty Seixas, producing a powerful all-court game, surprised a capacity crowd of 14,000 packed into the concrete horseshoe stadium surrounding the famous Centre Court with the ease of his conquest. Vic's seamstress cost him the first set against the 23-year-old Hartwig, Number Three man of Australia's powerful Davis Cup forces. For it was his error which broke his service in the fifth game and the blond Rex, given a lift, smashed through again in the next game on volley placements.

Seixas settled down in the second set and held service throughout, meanwhile breaking twice. He cracked through in the second game as Hartwig volleyed out twice, and then double-faulted twice. Seixas broke in the seventh game too on a volley placement, two backhand passing shots and a netted volley to square it up.

They were all over the court as Seixas lost service to open the third set. Hartwig riared up for two volley placements, Vic double-faulted and then netted a volley. But Seixas broke right back with two volley placements. They held then until Seixas broke through in the ninth game. Seixas volleyed, marked the fourth—and final—set as Seixas cracked through in the first game with placements at the net. But Hartwig went into a 4-2 lead by outvolleying Seixas briefly to crack through in the fourth and sixth games. Then Seixas regained his touch and ran off four straight games, smashing through twice as they squarred off face to face at the barrier.

POPULAR TRIUMPHS

It was a popular triumph, as was that of Miss Hart, a gangling girl from Coral Gables, Florida, who three times fought off defeat with the gameness which carried her through a near-tragic childhood. Beaten in the finals five times, the last two seasons by the now injured Maureen (Little Mo) Connolly, the blonde Florida appeared headed for another bitter defeat after dropping the first set to Miss Brough, who had won the crown in 1947 and thrice won at Wimbledon since then.

But Miss Brough faded under the sun in the second set and Doris, who once feared she'd never walk again after a childhood accident, held on grimly to crown with a dramatic stand in the final set. In the 10th game, Miss Brough led 5-4 and had a match point before lapsing into errors. Then in the 12th game, Louise sent in a perfect drop shot for advantage and another match point, but Doris reduced the game again when Miss Brough hit into the net. Later in the same game Doris double-faulted to give Miss Brough another match point but Miss Brough again netted a backhand to deuce the game. Louise hit two bad shots thereafter and Miss Hart evened the set at 6-6.

In the 13th game, Miss Hart took a 7-4 lead by scoring the only service break of the set, winning the last three points by hammering Miss Brough's backhand hard enough to force errors. Doris then held service with the loss of only one point to close out the match.

Miss Brough, who moved out to a 3-1 lead in the first set and then lost it, finally scored the key service break in the 13th game to lead 7-6. Miss Hart, who won only one point in that game, double-faulted on the final point. Miss Brough held service in the next game when, after 30-all, Miss Hart netted a half-volley on the backhand and weakly popped a forehand volley into the net.

Early in the second set, Miss Brough seemed to wilt in the intense heat and after she dropped her service to give Miss Hart a 2-0 lead she played listlessly and appeared anxious to have the set over with so she could recuperate in the usual intermission period.

Miss Brough was much refreshed after the rest but Miss Hart retained her second set touch and refused to allow her service to be broken.

GRAND SLAM Miss Hart and Seixas completed a grand slam of the United States Championships when they teamed to win the mixed doubles from Mrs. Margaret Osborne Du Pont of Wilmington, Delaware, and Australian Ken Rosewall, 4-6, 6-1, 6-1.

Hart previously won the women's doubles with Miss Shirley Fry of Akron, Ohio, and Seixas the men's doubles with Tony Trabert of Cincinnati, Ohio.—United Press.

Trueman Causes A Pakistan Collapse

Hastings, Sept. 6

A devastating spell of fast bowling by Freddie Trueman caused a Pakistan collapse against an England XI on the second day of a Festival match here.

Pakistan, 218 for five at tea, lost their remaining wickets in half an hour for the addition of only 18 runs. Trueman claimed four for eight in this period and took a splendid catch to dismiss Kam Wazir off Leander. His final figures were five for 57. The tourists thus had a lead of 52—much less than at one time seemed likely—which was whittled down to 21 by the close, when England in their second innings had scored 31 for one.

Only four deliveries in the morning were necessary to end the England first innings for 162. Neville Rogers of Hampshire, undefeated over the week-end with 98, carried his bat for 101.

Fast-medium bowler Mahmood Hussain recorded his best figures of the tour with seven for 61. Waqar Hussain (79) and Imtiaz Ahmed, (78) batted ineffectively to add 143 in two and three quarter hours for the Pakistan second wicket.

OTHER MATCHES

Rain largely curtailed play in the Festival matches at Scarborough and Torquay today. At Scarborough, play was confined to a total of one hour, made up of two spells and in that time the Gentlemen lost two more wickets for the addition of 22 runs and so finished 238 behind the Players' first innings score with seven wickets intact.

Play could not begin at Torquay until shortly after three o'clock. Features of the day's play were a fine hundred, including 14 runs, by Australian Jack Livingston and some big hitting by Frank Tyson, chosen to tour Australia primarily for his fast bowling.

One terrific pull by Tyson landed in the local station-master's garden after clearing two roads.

At the close, North were 187 behind, with five wickets in hand.—Reuter.

Army Hockey Trials Tomorrow

The second Hockey Trials for the Army will be held at Soekhoe tomorrow, afternoon commencing at 2 p.m. Australian Jack Livingston and some big hitting by Frank Tyson, chosen to tour Australia primarily for his fast bowling.

OPEN BARGAINING?

SILENCE AT HKFA COUNCIL MEETING

A challenge to the Council Members present to deny the fact that there was open bargaining for the services of Hongkong football players for the coming season's play by local clubs, went unanswered at the Hongkong Football Association Council Meeting yesterday.

Mr. L. Channing defied the Council members present, especially the Chinese, to deny knowledge of the tempting offers made to various players since the return of the touring team from Southeast Asia, and in support of his challenge, quoted the cartoons depicting these offers which have recently appeared in the Chinese Press.

This, he stated, was a reflection on the HKFA and on the Chinese members of the Council individually and collectively and he requested the Chairman to tell the meeting what the Association was going to do about it.

ABOLISH AMATEURS

He added that a solution was to abolish the local amateur league, and start a professional league, plans of which have been prepared and ready for immediate action of the touring team from Southeast Asia, and in support of his challenge, quoted the cartoons depicting these offers which have recently appeared in the Chinese Press.

Opening with the unanimous adoption of a proposal to send a letter of condolence to the family of the late Mr. Aw Boon Haw, patron of Sing Tao FC, the items discussed included a special resolution passed to the effect that the HKFA Secretary will, at the discretion of the Council, in future accompany the Colony's teams on all tours overseas in order to relieve the team captain and manager of the financial duties involved.

A heated discussion over a proposal to discontinue the issuance of complimentary tickets to players and officials, was eventually defeated on a vote. During this discussion a member stated that pre-war no passes were issued, and players desiring to attend any match had to make his own arrangements to see the game. Another member retorted that in those days players were not paid $390 per month to play football as they are today.

Application of Talkoo and Western for a transfer into Division II B was refused, RAMC and Little Sai Wan were admitted into Division II "B" and the application of Kwong Lok Motor Bus to Division III was accepted.

CLUB GROUND READY

The Hongkong Football Club representative informed the Meeting that the Club Ground would be available for use for the Stanley Shield Competition from today, providing the two uncompleted end stands were not used.

The approaching visit by the soccer team from Malaysia for the Ho Ho Cup revealed the fact that apart from the match of main importance, — Hongkong Chinese v. Malayan Chinese, — on the first day for the above Cup — October 2 — two other matches were arranged.

There would take place on October 3, and 5 respectively. The one on October 3 would be a Malaysia team against a Hongkong Representative XI which would be made up of players who will represent the Colony in future international matches such as the Olympics and Asian Games etc. The second, on October 5, was the Malaysia team v. All Hongkong.

The inefficiency of junior league referees was stressed and a proposal that the HKFA be left to handle the matter was passed.

The meeting closed with the proposal that the selection of the two Colony teams be made by the Interpart Selection Committee, who would publish this at a later date.

Referees' Meeting

The monthly meeting of the Hongkong Football Referees Association is to be held at the Javero-NAAFI Club on Tuesday, Sept. 14, at 7.30 p.m.

Better Football Already —But Slow Handclaps Are Doing No Good

Says TOM FINNEY

It shouldn't come from a player, perhaps, but I'm bold enough this week to suggest that football IS better this season—already. The tremendous effort almost everywhere that's gone into combining the best of the new ideas with the best of the old is beginning already to produce results.

I feel that Preston are certainly a better team, and playing better football than before; and experienced judges of the game have been telling me about the exhilarating displays of the Wolves, Manchester United, Everton, Birmingham City, Fulham and other teams in all divisions. I can speak of Everton from first-hand experience. They bent us by a goal to nil at Goodison Park.

But let me put in another warning to the Soccer fan about slow handclapping, a form of barracking that seems to be spreading like wildfire — Mr. Jimmy Seed, the Charlton manager, has already called it a "disease".

I say that if supporters are going to give the slow handclap because their team are losing, they will be doing a great disservice to the game and destroy overnight the incentive to play attractive football. Back to the win-at-all-costs idea that can so easily be part and parcel of promotion and relegation.

One of the plagues of the modern game, through every grade, has been the absolute urge to get the ball rapidly to the other end of the field. A long job by the full-back on to the opposing side's penalty line, followed by a blunderbuss dash by the centre — forward and thump — a blazing shot on the run. Wonderful? No. Sometimes these tactics with matches end, and sometimes there is a most spectacular goal as a result, but we shall never get back to the top of the world on that path.

If you've seen the Hungarians in person or on TV you will have seen how often the ball is actually passed back to Hiedegkull, the centre-forward, as a preliminary to prising open the other side's defence with a long pass forward.

So, slow handclappers, be patient for victory and look for good football.

WATCH THE WOLVES. They told their exhibition against the Spurs was right on the top flight. They're a real team, with every man trying to use the ball to the fullest advantage, and much of their strength this season as last, is in the fact that they have such a wealth of talent in the reserves.

Watch Everton's half-back line — Peter Farrell, Tommy Jones and Cyril Lello. They're a thorn in the flesh of any forward-line but note the way they play the men in front of them with the right kind of passes.

Watch Manchester United, whose youngsters may be the surprise of the season. Watch their inside-forwards, Dennis Viollet, Colin Webster and Jackie Blanchflower. In particular.

At the first opportunity I shall watch Fulham, whose goal-hungry forward-line may take them galloping through the Second Division, this season. Johnny Haynes, according to some judges, may develop into the season's outstanding inside-forward.

Everton's immediate success in the First Division can be a match for most of the teams in a higher Division. Their success is also a tribute to Cliff Britton, who put a five-year plan into operation when he took over as manager from Burnley.

DON'T BE EMPATIENT. Another thing for slow handclappers to remember: when you are looking for good football the most difficult time in the life of any club is a period of transition — when a team is being rebuilt. Not even Manchester United were able to rebuild their team and be completely successful at the same time.

The difficulties of transition are increased a hundredfold, of course, when the team becomes caught in the net of relegation. Middlebrough had that experience. Now they have made an unhappy start in the Second Division and I know that, if I were a Middlebrough player, I should hope, at the moment, for the maximum encouragement and the minimum of criticism from the terraces.

They have lost Wilf Mannion, as fine an inside-forward as I have ever played with. You need time to bridge a gap that must occur in any team that loses a schemer of Mannion's quality. Inside-forwards, like wing-half-backs, are key men in a team.

But Middlebrough has always been a home of good football and, if the new manager, Bob Denison, is able to find a settled combination they may yet play a part in the promotion race which, this season, promises to provide us with an even bigger field of runners than usual.

From all I have seen and played against in international football this past twelve months I am more certain than ever not only that the public want to watch on-the-ground, attractive football but that good football will pay rich dividends in trophies and championships. This season will prove it.

COACHING HINT

In practice or in actual play, for maximum control of the ball keep your body over it. By leaning over the ball a player forms a protective curtain which keeps it in his possession as far as anything can; this action ensures that the ball is close enough to his feet for accurate control and distribution and gives him a strong chance of resisting a tackle.

St. Leger Callover

London, Sept. 6

Odds offered against the 10 colts left in next Saturday's St. Leger at the end of tonight's callover session at the Victoria Club here were:

9 to 2 Never Say Die, 5 to 1 By Thunder, 13 to 2 Blue Sail, 100 to 9 Aranya, 100 to 8 Arabian Night, 100 to 7 Double Bore and Umberto, 22 to 1 Rashleigh and Element, 25 to 1 Amber II, 28 to 1 Estremador, 33 to 1 Alphenhorn, Prescription and Entente Cordiale, 40 to 1 Phenomenal, Tarjoman and Blue Prince II, 100 to 1 Nicholas Nickleby, 200 to 1 Icarian.

Never Say Die, who had an impressive final gallop at Yarmouth Race Course on Saturday, remained as favourite at tonight's session. Although there had been marked opposition to the Derby winner at previous callovers, it was impossible to obtain more than 9 to 2 about him.

Betting was light and no candidate was supported to win any substantial amount. By Thunder who shared favouritism with Never Say Die, stayed at 5 to 1 but the Irish colt, Blue Sail, eased fractionally to 13 to 2.

Arabian Night, who was second in the Derby, hardened from 100 to 7 to 100 to 8 while among the long shots, Blue Prince II, another American owned runner, came in to 40 to 1 from previous offers of 80 to 1. The next callover will be Wednesday, September 8.

PROBABLE STARTERS

Nineteen probable starters and jockeys for the St. Leger, last British classic race of the year, to be run over one mile, six furlongs and 132 yards at 1415 GMT at Doncaster next Saturday, September 11, are: Carian (no jockey yet), Alphenhorn (A. Eustacey), Estremador (E. Mercer), Aranya (J. Doyavero), Umberto (K. Gethin), Never Say Die (C. Semler), Entente Cordiale (D. Smith), Arabian Night (E. Smith), Nicholas Nickleby (M. Beany), By Thunder (W. Small), Blue Sail (J. Longden or N. Rickaby), Phenomenal (E. Britt), Blue Prince II (W. Carr), Tarjoman (R. Pollock), Prescription (R. Rickaby or A. N. O'Brien), Elopement (W. Johnston), Rashleigh (W. Novell), Double Bore (C. Gosling) and Amber II (S. Smith). All carry 126 pounds. —China Mail Special.

Florence Chadwick Swimming Lake Ontario For $10,000

Youngstown, New York, Sept. 6

Miss Florence Chadwick plunges into icy Lake Ontario tonight to swim for $10,000, and two other women will jump in after her to do it for nothing.

The Canadian National Exhibition was officially sponsoring Miss Chadwick, 34-year-old conqueror of the English Channel and the Straits of Gibraltar, for $10,000, if she makes it to the Toronto shore.

JUST FOR PRIDE

The other two are doing it just for pride. Marilyn Bell, 16-year-old New Toronto choir singer who was the first woman to finish the 26-mile Atlantic City swim, said she wanted to "uphold the honour of Canada."

Mrs. Winnie Roach Laugher of St. Thomas, Ontario, "the only Canadian to swim the English Channel," said she wanted to "prove who's better — Florence Chadwick or me."

Weather conditions were close to ideal for the swim. The lake temperature was 44 degrees, about as warm as it ever gets. While women expected to swim the "warm" currents to the lake bottom, said the lake bottom, for the first time in 100 years, was not so deep. The water was so shallow that the women could see the bottom. The water was so shallow that the women could see the bottom. The water was so shallow that the women could see the bottom.

World Amateur Billiards Championship

Sydney, Sept. 6

Australian Tom Cleary led England's advantage by 804 points after the first two sessions of the opening match in the World Amateur Billiards Championship which began here today. Cleary, with 2,037 points to Edwards' 1,173, will be in an almost unbeatable position when the play off the final session tomorrow.

The Championship is being decided in a series of four sessions played in two-hour sessions. The winner will be the player to win the greatest number of matches. There are 16 matches in all. The first session was played today. The second session was played yesterday. The third session was played today. The fourth session was played yesterday.

THE SPORTS ROUNDABOUT

The Hungarians Have Found A Centre-Forward Even Better Than Hidegkuti

By W. CAPEL KIRBY

Although Scotland have won their point by insisting on Hungary sending their strongest World Cup team to Glasgow for the match at Hampden Park on December 8 or thereabouts, don't be surprised if Hidegkuti is missing from the mesmerising Magyars' line-up.

In Switzerland they were telling me there is a young nipper and better centre-forward ready to take over from Hungary's goal-getting maestro.

His name is Ferenc Mészáros. I gather it was touch and go whether he, not Hidegkuti, led Hungary's attack in the World Cup series.

Now that Dick White is out of the Army how long can Southcombe afford to ignore overtures for their class centre half-back?

Fortunally, for instance, haven't forgotten the three storming games White played against them in the Cup last term.

FANLING GOLF

P. G. Cornish won the September Qualifier for the Captain's Cup on the Old Course with a return of nett 70. A. D. Duffy being runner-up with 71 and L. F. Stokes, P. H. Taggart and Y. T. Tsong shared third place with returns of nett 72.

The best Medal cards returned during the week-end were: P. G. Cornish 84—14 = nett 70; L. F. Stokes 90—20 = nett 70; A. D. Duffy 78—7 = nett 71; A. D. Jones 91—20 = nett 71; P. H. Taggart 89—17 = nett 72; Y. T. Tsong 90—18 = nett 72; W. D. Leighton 80—7 = nett 73; J. D. Mackie 78—3 = nett 73.

Results of the second Summer Ecclecle played, over the Old Course at Fanling from July 10 to August 31, were as follows: Gross—Winner—R. G. L. Oliphant—63; Runner-up John Wai—64.

Nett—Winner—J. E. Huson—74—24 = nett 50; Runner-up Lt. L. D. Haywood—73—22 = nett 51.

J. F. Shoemaker was the winner of the August Qualifier for the Smalley Mid-week Cup with a return of 85—15 = nett 70.

WHITFIELD BARRACKS SIX-A-SIDE HOCKEY LEAGUE

The Whitfield Barracks six-a-side Hockey League continues with unabated enthusiasm. The standard of play is high though certain teams have already had setbacks in losing key players during this first month's play. The league is due to finish on October 1.

So far there are three unbeaten teams—Hongkong Kowloon Garrison 'A', 173 Locating Bly 'A' and 173 Locating Bly 'B'. The first two teams have played five matches and the last only three. However RHQ 72 LAA, Regt RA and 8 Coy RASC 'A' have lost only one game and have shown much improvement lately. They may well upset the more favoured teams.

HKKG 'A' are a sound side who rely mainly on the stick-work of Sgt Percy who is playing very well. There is little to choose between 173 'A' and 'B' teams although the former claim the more experienced players. Both, however, are young sides and are probably the fittest in the competition. RHQ 72 also have a good nucleus of experienced players in RBM, Opa and BSM. A crop of new players have taken the team recently with the result that a weakened team were humbled 6-1 by 173 'A'. 8 Coy RASC 'A' are a good side who although losing 7-3 to 173 'A' gave the latter a much needed

LADIES' TENNIS TOURNAMENT STARTS

TWO CLOSEST MATCHES WERE FOUGHT OUT IN COMPARATIVE OBSCURITY

One of the difficulties about watching the early rounds of a tennis tournament is that there is so much going on that it is not possible to get more than an impression of most of the games. While you are flitting from one court to another the climax of the match is arising on the one you have just left or, even more difficult, on another court tucked away in a corner.

So it was last evening at the opening of the Colony Ladies' Tennis Championships at the Ladies' Recreation Club. While most of the spectators found that the stands gave them a good general view of five games, tucked away on the two courts that could not be seen two well fought matches were being played out.

Down on Court 8 Miss Margaret Fincher was learning that in tournament tennis a little more than steadiness is required, players must win points rather than wait for their opponents to lose them.

So, after some very steady play in the early part of the first set she found that the more experienced Mrs. M. Peppercorn began to produce outright winners down either wing of the court to which she had no answer.

Up on Court 2, Mrs. P. Eyles, a hard hitter who is sometimes a bit erratic, found herself in arrears after the first set against Mrs. M. Guillaume who has not before been seen in local Championships.

Mrs. Guillaume, however, found that a powerful forehand is not the complete answer to everything and once Mrs. Eyles discovered the comparative weakness of the backhand she was able to pull the match out of the fire.

PULLED OUT WINNERS
Similarly on Court 7 Miss Greta Lo had to pull out winners to beat Miss Diana Madgett whose big lead in the first set was built up on getting to the net as quickly as possible. These tactics looked like paying a quick dividend until Miss Lo saw that with the volleys not being sufficiently angled, the passing shot should be used to leave Miss Madgett without an answer.

On Court 3 Mrs. G. D. Malden had a fairly easy game against Miss Alice Oei who never seemed to get going at all whilst Mrs. A. C. Thompson, after finding the surface of the court somewhat slippery in the first set when she was extended to 7-5, decided to play in bare feet and had a somewhat easier passage into the quarter-finals than looked probable at one time.

On Court 5 Miss Ailsa Philip and Miss Joan Lambour had a good hard-hitting battle with Miss Philip just having the edge all the time. She has all the strokes and obviously knows her tournament tennis and it remains to be seen whether she can produce her outright winners against the steadiness of the players she will meet in the later rounds.

In the remaining match Mrs. Mary Chow, the number two seed, demonstrated that she was too good for Mrs. M. Ramchand.

The latter player seemed to be finding herself rather out of position a few yards forward of the base line and not by any means fast enough to get back and deal with Mrs. Chow's fast good length-drives to the corners. At the same time she kept producing the occasional first class shot which left Mrs. Chow absolutely standing.

On the form shown last evening it is difficult to see anyone upsetting the seeded players in this Championship, but there should be some interesting games in the Quarter-Finals on Friday evening with the spotlight on the encounter between Mrs. Lo and Mrs. Peppercorn at the top of the draw and the battle of the left-handers, Mrs. Chow and Mrs. Malden, at the lower end.

This evening we have the first round games of the Colony Ladies' Doubles and tomorrow the Colony Mixed Doubles gets under way, so here's hoping the weather holds up.

YESTERDAY'S RESULTS

Colony Ladies' Singles
Mrs. Mary Chow beat Mrs. M. Ramchand 6-1, 6-0.
Miss Greta Lo beat Miss D. Madgett 7-5, 6-2.
Miss Ailsa Philip beat Miss Joan Lambour 6-3, 6-2.
Mrs. D. Malden beat Miss Alice Oei 5-1, 6-0.
Mrs. P. Eyles beat Mrs. M. C. Guillaume 4-6, 6-4, 6-3.
Mrs. M. Peppercorn beat Miss Margaret Fincher 6-2, 6-0.
Mrs. A. C. Thompson beat Miss Phyllis Koo 7-5, 6-3.

TO-DAY'S GAMES

Colony Ladies' Doubles Championship
Mrs. Brooke Smith and Mrs. Hill v. Miss Fincher and Miss Silva (Court 3)
Mrs. Peppercorn and Mrs. Greta v. Mrs. Eyles and Mrs. M. Chan (Court 4)
Mrs. Stokes and Miss Lambour v. Mrs. Eyles and Mrs. Thompson (Court 5)
Mrs. Cox and Mrs. Roberts v. Miss Mandfield and Miss Liddington (Court 6).

Open Singles Quarter-finals This Evening

By "TOUCHER"

A full programme of all the four quarter-finals of the Colony Men's Open Singles Lawn Bowls Championship is scheduled for today.

An interesting feature of this year's quarter-finals is that both last year's Champion, M. B. Hassan, and runner-up George Norman are still in the running.

Speculation is rife whether last year's final will be repeated and whether M. B. Hassan will be the first lawn bowler to win the title two years running after an interval of 41 years since W. Russell achieved that feat in 1912 and 1913.

At the Hongkong Football Club, Hassan will be pitted against no mean performer in A. H. Seemlin who already has to his credit a brilliant win over J. S. Lendell in his previous round.

Seemlin is the more consistent drawing man of the two, but Hassan is the more experienced and possesses a greater variety of shots.

Though Hassan will come on the green as the favourite, he will have to produce at least 80 per cent of his best form to get through this round.

A much closer and keener game is expected on the adjacent rink of the same green between A. L. G. Eastman and A. R. A. Rahman.

The Indian Recreation Club player is ranked as perhaps the best drawing man in his club today and this he amply proved in his earlier round victory over Hongkong's Empire Games representative Joe Lux.

Eastman is also in the same category as his opponent in ability to get to the jack and some extremely good bowling should be forthcoming from this encounter with the odds about 80-40 in favour of Rahman.

At Recreation, Peter Hughes will probably enjoy a slight edge over the "T.C.C." clubman, Frank Russell, whose Frank Chalk (gully) something extra from his base of rink for collection in this round.

Frank Stranahan Relinquishes His Amateur Status

New York, Sept. 6. Frank Stranahan, 30, of Toledo, Ohio, one of the world's leading amateur golfers, today announced his intention of competing as a professional golfer in the future.

Before taking off by plane for Brazil where he plans to play in an open tournament next week-end, Stranahan declared an announcement to be distributed after his departure.

He also sent a letter to the United States Golf Association, notifying them that he was relinquishing his amateur status.

Stranahan has competed in open and amateur championships in many parts of the world. He was British Amateur Champion in 1948 and 1950 and in the same year was runner-up in the American Amateur Championship. He has also won the Canadian Amateur Championship and the U.S. Amateur Public Links Championship. Stranahan is a member of the United States Golf Association and the Royal and Ancient Golf Club of St. Andrews.

Langlois First Challenger For Olsen's Title

Paris, Sept. 6. French middleweight boxer, has been named first challenger for the world middleweight title held by Carl "Bobo" Olson, of the United States. It was announced today.

A letter from Mr. Robert Christensen, President of the International Boxing Commission, to M. Edouard Rabreau, Secretary of the French Boxing Federation, stated that "Mr. Christensen had accepted by Manager Jean Barthelemy and that Langlois could be seen and named the brand manager for the French Boxing Federation."

DINK TEMPLETON PREDICTS

United States Will Lose Its World Dominance In The Olympic Games

San Francisco, Sept. 6. Unless there is a great rekindling of spirit in the American track and field ranks, the United States will lose its world dominance in the Olympic Games—possibly in 1956, but not later than 1960.

So says famed Dink Templeton, head coach of the San Francisco Olympic Club, former Stanford coach and now a radio sports commentator.

"Constantin Adrianov" of Russia comes pretty close to hitting the nail right on the head when he said that the United States world superiority in track and field is a thing of the past," said Templeton.

"If we continue on our present lethargic way, we will be a cinch to lose in the 1960 Olympics," said Templeton. "There should be more meets planned for the fall months to keep our boys ready for the Melbourne Olympics."

Templeton says that as far as he can see there seems to be no interest in women's track and field in the United States.

"Russia and other European countries have great feminine track and field stars," says Templeton. "We just can't seem to generate any interest in women as track and field performers. There are a few leaders at work trying to get our young girls to run and jump—but they aren't getting much support."

PUBLIC APATHY
"We can't get on the sports pages without a big-time meet," said Templeton. "We have a general apathy on the part of the public as to why we track and field is so important."

The United States Olympic Committee (U.S.O.C.) is planning to hold a series of meets in the fall to keep United States athletes in top-up condition for the 1956 Olympic Games in Melbourne, Australia.

He pointed out that not only Russia, but Hungary, Czechoslovakia, Finland, Sweden, England, Australia, and many other countries are making great strides in track and field. "We are a few leaders at work trying to get our young girls to run and jump—but they aren't getting much support."

Mountaineers From Four Countries Heading For Other High Peaks

Katmandu, Nepal, Sept. 6.

After the conquest of the two highest peaks in the world, Everest and K2, mountaineers from four different countries are now heading for the next four highest peaks.

During this autumn and next spring, British, German, French and Austrian expeditions will attempt Kanchenjunga (28,168 feet), Lhotse (27,890), Makalu (27,790 feet) and Cho Oyu (26,750 feet).

Earlier this year a British expedition reconnoitred Kanchenjunga, the world's third highest peak and one of the most difficult mountains of all to climb. The expedition reported that it had found a feasible way up the mountain and the main attempt will be made next spring.

A German expedition is going to Lhotse, fourth highest mountain and twin peak to Everest. It has never yet been attempted. The expedition asked for permission to make the climb this autumn but the Nepalese Government refused since there were already sufficient expeditions booked for the Nepal Himalayas. So the Germans will come next spring.

They will take the route up through the icefall and western Cwm followed by the British expedition in their successful attempt on Everest last year.

RECONNAISSANCE

The French have booked Makalu, fifth highest peak, both for this autumn and next spring. An attempt made by the Americans earlier this year on Makalu failed after they had reached a height of 23,000 feet. An eight-man French reconnaissance team composed mainly of French guides from Chamouni, in the Alps, and led by M. Jean Franco, is now on its way to Makalu. It hopes to set up a base camp at the foot of the mountain by September 15 and to make a complete reconnaissance of the area during the following five weeks.

The sixth highest mountain, Cho Oyu, has been picked by a small Austrian party led by Dr. Herbert Tichy, a Viennese geologist and writer. Dr. Tichy, with his two Austrian companions, Dr. Helmut Heuberger, a geography professor from Innsbruck, and Herr Josef Jochler, a building engineer, is already on his way to Namche Bazar, the sherpa village on the route to Everest and Cho Oyu.

In addition to these attempts on the four highest unconquered peaks several other expeditions are planned.

OXFORD TEAM

A British team from Oxford University, which is to assault the 23,079 feet Saipal Peak, in northwest Nepal, is already at the base of the mountain. To fit in their expedition during the summer vacation, the Oxford team have had to make their attempt during the risky period of the monsoon.

A Swiss expedition led by the famous Swiss guide, Raymond Lambert, who reached 28,215 feet on Mount Everest with Tensing in 1952, will attempt the 23,440-foot Gaurishankar this autumn.

Gaurishankar has never yet been attempted. It lies about 30 miles west of Everest and was frequently mistaken for it by early geographers.

GERMAN TEAM

A German team led by Herr Rudi Rott will try one of the peaks in the Garhwal Himalayan area of India. They will probably tackle 23,350-foot Triash, which was the first big Himalayan peak ever conquered. It was climbed by a British expedition in 1907. This autumn will be the first big post-monsoon climbing season ever undertaken in the Himalayas.

Hitherto most expeditions have made their attempts in the spring, though both the Swiss and the British in 1952 tried autumn expeditions to Everest and Cho Oyu.

These autumn climbers will have to contend with heavy monsoon rains on the approach of March, treacherous snow conditions on the mountains and the sudden dangerous grip of winter cold, which means certain death if they stay in the mountains too long.—China Mail Special.

Flying Saucers Are Real, Say Australians

Melbourne, Sept. 6.

Ten flying saucer enthusiasts in Melbourne, who have spent a year investigating sightings of mysterious objects seen in the sky over the city, have reached the conclusion that flying saucers are real.

"Flying saucers have definite objective existence," they declare. "They are real things, not optical tricks."

The 10 men making up the self-styled flying saucer investigation committee are a banker, a journalist, four engineers, two clerks and two industrial engineers.

A year ago these men decided they would investigate the phenomena independently. They cross-examined 55 people on what they had seen and reached their conclusions: one of the "saucers" was a balloon, four were meteors, one was a drifting seed of a Scotch thistle; two were jet aircraft, and 47 could not be explained.

The solution of the whole "flying saucer" mystery, the committee adds, constitutes "a challenge to further intensified and painstaking research."—China Mail Special.

UNEXPLAINED SAUCERS

A spokesman of the Committee said the 47 "unexplained" saucers broke us into four distinct groups.

1. Six were cigar-shaped glowing objects seen at night gliding in the sky.
2. Fifteen were "proper" flying saucers or discs, rotating bodies appearing in pairs. When seen low down the upper portion appears to rotate. This type have windows and small ball-like wheels underneath.
3. Six more were shooting "moons"—bright lights which flash across the sky, hover for a minute or so, and appear or disappear suddenly.
4. The largest class, with 20 sightings, were small hovering lights, which hang in the sky, then dash off at high speed. In daylight, their surfaces flash in the sun like highly polished metal.

CONVINCED

"The committee is convinced that they have a definite, objective existence. They have been seen in too many widely separated places, at too many

Construction Started On Atom Plant

Shippingport, Penn., Sept. 6.

President Eisenhower started the building of the world's first full scale atom power plant for producing electricity here today by waving a "magic wand" 1,200 miles away at his holiday headquarters in Colorado.

Television viewers across America saw him wave the radioactive "wand" in front of a cabinet setting off an electrical impulse which travelled along a telephone wire to start the engine of a power shovel on the atom station site here.

The power plant he has started will cost $45,000,000. It is a joint effort by the Atomic Energy Commission, Westinghouse Electric Corporation and the Duquesne Light Corporation.

The Westinghouse Corporation is building and the Government will own the pressurized water reactor generating heat to drive the generators.

Duquesne Light Company will pay for and own other parts of the plant and will build the conventional section of the power generating plant.—Reuter.

Myxomatosis Hits Domestic Rabbits

London, Sept. 6.

Myxomatosis, the disease which is wiping out Britain's wild rabbits, is now spreading to domestic rabbits.

Mr. J. Sandford, Secretary of the British Rabbit Council, said here that cases had occurred among exhibition and fur rabbits in Kent, Sussex and Essex.

"One breeder in the Lewes area lost 16 rabbits and a guinea pig in 1953, had to destroy 14 because of the disease," he said.

"Breeders are not obliged to notify outbreaks and we are sure that there have been many more cases than have been reported to us."

Mr. Sandford said the disease was spread by insects. He estimated the domestic rabbit population in Britain was 25,000,000, including adult and young animals, and the value of specimens ranged from £2 to £50 sterling.—China Mail Special.

Afro-Asian Conference

Colombo, Sept. 6.

Mr. A. E. Goonesinha, Ceylon's envoy in Indonesia, said on arrival here today that the Indonesian Government had almost completed its plans for an Afro-Asian conference in Djakarta next January or February.

The invitations will be issued shortly to all countries in the region from Egypt to Japan, he said.

Dr. Soekarno, the Indonesian President, had told him it was "the dream of his life" to see the Afro-Asian countries united together on a common platform.

Mr. Goonesinha is on his way to Burma to take up an appointment there.—Reuter.

Belgrade, Sept. 6.

The Chiefs of General Staff of the three Balkan Alliance powers—Greece, Turkey and Yugoslavia—are to meet in Athens on September 20, the Yugoslav Agency announced today. The meeting is expected to discuss the new situation created after the Ankara Pact and the Balkan Alliance.

Aircraft Industry Show: Points From Programme

One of the most interesting entries this year is the Folland Midge, for which an individual demonstration in the flying programme has been planned. The Midge, although it first flew as recently as August 11, has already completed its preliminary flight trials. It is the prototype of a new lightweight jet fighter now under construction called the Gnat. Like the D.H. 110 which will also be shown, the Gnat will have a flying tailplane, and a working model of it will be exhibited on the Static Exhibition. The stand will also feature a fully-equipped front fuselage of a Midge, and a new lightweight fully-automatic ejector seat which has been developed with a view to keeping the weight of Gnat to the minimum, in order to save cost and production time.

RECORD EXPORT ORDERS

A single fighter, the Hawker Hunter, has achieved orders worth £120,000,000 apart from direct orders for the RAF. A single merchant aircraft, the Vickers Viscount, has achieved orders for overseas amounting to £32,000,000.

The Vickers Viscount shown at Farnborough this year will be flying in the colours of Trans-Australia Airlines, which will be the first company outside Europe to take delivery of Viscounts. Only this week TAA's Canadian counterpart, Trans-Canada Airlines, placed a repeat order for 7 Viscounts and Alkwork, a British company, ordered 3. The TCA order is the second repeat order received by Vickers. Armstrongs from a dollar purchaser. Capital Airlines, USA, had already increased a previous order for three to one of forty aircraft.

Bristol will this year again demonstrate the Britannia, which has now emerged into the production stage. Four are due for delivery to BOAC before the end of the year.

Finally the Comet 3 will give the public a glimpse of the jet transport of the future. It is a swept-wing aircraft of undoubted beauty, and yet capable of carrying seventy-five passengers at 500 mph over the Atlantic.

These and numerous other developments will indicate some of the progress made in British aviation during the year. Once again the outlines of the future will be discernible at the SBAC's September Show.

Britain is being urged to ratify an agreement drawn up nearly two years ago by 20 nations to define liability for damage caused by an aeroplane crashing in a country not of its origin.

That agreement, the Rome Convention, was to come into effect when five nations had ratified it. So far only one country, Egypt, has done so.

The Local Authorities Airport Committee, representing local councils around London Airport, have been told that any claim for compensation could be against the owner, or company operating the aircraft. But the committee have been warned by their honorary secretary, Mr. M. Coupe, that there was always a possibility that a foreign aeroplane might not be fully insured.

So the committee are urging the Government to ratify the Rome Convention.

But even if Britain were to become the second to ratify the agreement, it would still need three other nations to sign before it became effective.

In practice, however, all airlines normally operating at London Airport are fully insured against third party claims.

Being the Air Minister's personal air secretary does not mean an armchair job all the time in Whitehall.

When Lord De L'Isle and Dudley went on a tour of RAF stations a few days ago he flew in a two-seat Vampire jet trainer. In the pilot's seat was the RAF's Squadron Leader J. E. Hill.

Before being attached to the Air Minister, Squadron Leader Hill commanded a Canberra jet bomber squadron.

Lockheed's Director of Commercial Sales talking about the new Model 1049G Super Constellation said recently: "With a 7,750-gallon total fuel capacity, Super Constellations will gain up to 850 miles more range, for a maximum distance capability of 4,020 miles with reserves, or 5,840 miles absolute. Tip tanks will be optional. The range bonus will cost no payment in the new ships because they have been built to take off with 137,400 pounds maximum gross weight, up from 135,400 pounds at present. Improvement of landing gear and engines make the higher weight possible. The Model G with tip tanks will be able to shorten travel time on long-range air routes by eliminating some fuel stop. Top speed is more than 370 mph. Maximum cruising speed is around 335 mph. The extra range potential will be particularly valuable west-bound across the Atlantic against headwinds. Against average 55-mph headwinds, for example, a 3,400-mile nonstop route becomes the same as a 4,100-mile trip in still air. That's when 850 miles more range pays off. For these new planes, the headwinds will be a breeze."

Attracted by high earnings, good dividends, and plentiful money the American investing public has been buying and selling stocks with enthusiasm. Under the resultant buying wave, stocks advanced monthly until the August break. For example, at the close of trading Wednesday, the Dow-Jones industrial average stood at 338.13, compared to 263.99 a year earlier.

According to some market specialists, investors' passion was deemed a healthy development. If anything, it tends to keep in check any inclination for over-speculation and also helps keep the market more selective. Elsewhere in the economy this week:

The trend towards consolidation has been most pronounced in the chemical and auto industries. But recent overtures in this direction by some hotel owners have been less successful.

"American Aviation" reports: "A critical beam of light will be used by the CAA and the National Air Transport Co-ordinating Committee in an attempt to reduce noise around the London Heathrow Field. The beam will be installed in a park four miles from the airport. Pilots flying toward the light will have climbed to an altitude of 1,500 feet by the time they reach it, and subsequent turns over residential areas will not be objectionable."

Hall L. Hibbard, Lockheed Aircraft Corp. vice president-engineering, is back from a two-month round-the-world trip more convinced than ever, he said, of the need for a freight transport of the type of Lockheed's forthcoming turboprop C-130.

Everywhere he went in the Orient and Middle East, he said, he was asked when an economic freight aeroplane would become available. Carriers are removing the eight front seats in some of their aircraft to make room for freight, he reported, and backlogs pile up at almost every airport.

Freight volumes are booming in Australia. Approximately 30 per cent of Australian National Airways' business now is air freight. The airlines in that part of the world would like an air freighter having about the same capacity as the DC-4, but designed for air freight service with truck loading.

Although he expects total unemployment figures to be reduced in the autumn, Mitchell said there will continue to be "chronic situation" and "spots of unemployment" will continue to cause trouble.

UNITED STATES STOCKS

First Monthly Decline Of The Year

By John Morka

New York, Sept. 6.

Stocks experienced their first monthly decline of the year in August.

In a broad setback on Monday, prices declined as much as two points as traders caution developed in the face of sustained market rise.

The drop on Tuesday was even more pronounced. The Dow-Jones industrial average fell 1.60 per cent on the day, eliminating all of the gains of the past two months. There was some resultant pressure on commodity prices as coffee and cocoa dipped near or to permissible limits. Elsewhere there were no wide price changes.

A host of reasons were advanced for the market sell-off. Mentioned was the failure of the French Assembly to ratify the plan for the European Defence Community with President Eisenhower's comment that the road ahead was still difficult and that much still remained to be done. But market experts leaned more to the idea that the market was just too strong for its own good and that it was due for a technical correction. Despite the temporary setback, Wall Street is experiencing its biggest wave of prosperity in years.

Attracted by high earnings, good dividends, and plentiful money the American investing public has been buying and selling stocks with enthusiasm. Under the resultant buying wave, stocks advanced monthly until the August break. For example, at the close of trading Wednesday, the Dow-Jones industrial average stood at 338.13, compared to 263.99 a year earlier.

Egypt Determined To Take Advantage Of Suez Settlement

London, Sept. 6. "Lombard" banking and finance columnist for London's Financial Times, said today in a column entitled "Sterling finance for Egypt":

"It seems that Egypt is determined to take full advantage for economic purposes of the improvement in Anglo-Egyptian relations that has followed the settlement of the Suez Canal zone dispute. Within a few weeks of the settlement it has been disclosed that the Egyptian Finance Minister, Dr. Hamid Shorif, is coming to London for discussions with British ministers about financial matters, and more particularly possible British help in financing major development schemes in Egypt."

SOURCE OF CAPITAL

"For many decades this country was the main source from which Egypt drew its supplies of foreign capital. But the departure of Egypt from the sterling area shortly after the end of the war and the subsequent deterioration in political and economic relations between the two countries put a complete stop to the movement of capital."

"It is not difficult to see why the Egyptian authorities would like to secure a revival of British investment interest in their country."

"For although during the past year or two the Egyptian Government has taken a number of important steps to encourage foreign money into the country by promising repatriation facilities the country is still suffering from an acute shortage of finance."

NO INDICATIONS

"In particular, there are still no indications that will be able to raise the substantial sums of money needed for carrying out some of the Egyptian Government's favourite long-term capital development projects. The Egyptian authorities have already had lengthy talks with the leading industrialists and bankers of the number of European countries."

"But these discussions have demonstrated only too clearly that all possible sources of foreign capital will have to be tapped."

"To some extent the British authorities could make additional supplies of sterling available by speeding up the releases from that country's blocked account."

Frankfurt Int'l Fair Opened

Frankfurt, Sept. 6. The Frankfurt International Fair opened here today with 3,127 exhibitors from 30 nations participating. The only "iron curtain" country present was Hungary with 18 exhibitors.

Federal Economics Minister Ludwig Erhard, in an opening address took the occasion to report that West Germany's still booming post-war economy had resulted in an increase of the gross national product of 9,000,000,000 Deutschmarks (US$2,142,557,100) over 1953.

He said gold and foreign exchange reserves were up 50 per cent. This year's fair is the largest since the war, with 120 more exhibitors than last year.

FOREIGN EXHIBITS

Foreign exhibits were up 133 to a total of 978. These included 207 Spanish firms—200 of them were consolidated in a wine pavilion—Italy with a total of 190 exhibitors, Greece with 109, Austria with 92, Yugoslavia with 63, France with 51, Portugal with 42, Japan with 32, the United States with 31, the Netherlands with 25, Hungary 16, Switzerland 21, Eire with 15, England with 12, Luxembourg with 13, India 12, Belgium with seven, Argentina and Australia with five each.

The West German Federal Press bulletin described the fair as one of the "show windows" of the Western world.

Meanwhile, the Communist world's biggest display of industrial and consumer goods was in progress at Leipzig, in the Soviet zone of Germany.—United Press.

Communist Exhibits Outstanding

Four Iron Curtain countries outshone the rest of the world with the abundance of their display of Britain's first post-war rationing food fair, which opened here today.

Nine other foreign countries had stands but Russia, Bulgaria, Hungary and Poland had much bigger stands, more elaborate decoration and a more varied and exotic display of culinary delicacies almost forgotten in Britain during 14 years of rationing.

The United States was not represented at the display, which filled the five acres of the Olympia Hall in west London. They were invited and officials said they did not know why there was no American representation, but guessed it was "a matter of dollars."

Bulk of the stands displaying every imaginable kind of food, from frozen canned, dried, smoked and the rest—were British apart from the national pavilions of Australia, Argentina, Denmark, Eire, Italy, Kenya, New Zealand, Northern Ireland, and South Africa plus the four Communist countries.—Reuter.
